Topics of the guideline	The Guideline deals with the European Concept for Accessibility with a focus on administration and its role in planning and the legal framework
Description of the guideline	Using European-wide experiences as an inspiration, this practical guide should allow local, regional or national administrations to start, maintain and complete the process of implementing Design for All approaches in the built environment through their internal procedures, maximising the use of available human and/or material resources. The aim of this guide is to demonstrate that the implementation of accessibility can only be managed by a team of people, all willing to take their individual responsibilities in their particular fields of expertise. Any group of persons working together needs a coordinator and in this case it can be the decision-maker, the technician or the client. Whoever it is, the coordinator will only be able to carry out his or her mission if all parties in the group are fully committed to the topic. This guide illustrates situations where administrations can intervene in the incorporation of Design for All approaches and suggests strategies for action and for monitoring and communicating results. We have tried to take European diversity into account through a set of case studies from different parts of Europe. Even if legislation and financial realities are quite different from one country to the other, the process of becoming aware of a problem and moving on to proposing a solution is universal and is the result of concerted action. We will present “success factors” that play a crucial role in the development of solutions. Sometimes it will be enough to fulfil some of these indicators, but in most cases, in order to guarantee the sustainable implementation of Design for All, all of them will have to be fulfilled.
