Topics of the guideline	The guideline deals with different experiences made with freedom of barriers in Germany. It gives reports about best practice cases and deals with the problems of PRM.
Description of the guideline	The present book gives insight in the experiences from research and praxis regarding the evolution of the concept of freedom of barriers to Design for All since 2003. At the same time, the content of three public events held by the European Institute Design for All in Germany is provided. Among the most interesting articles are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Design for All - Challenges and guidelines for cities and communities - The EU project "Build for All" - Implementation of freedom of barriers and Design for All by German public procurement law - A space for all - Cities and communities seen as barrier-free experience spaces - Traffic space design for all! Even pedestrians?! - Barrier-free environment design for visual and hearing impaired people - problems, standards, evolutions - Traffic space design for all? Requirements and examples from the experience
