Topics of the guideline	A Methodical Handbook for schools, parents and children. This handbook offers various methods, which can ensure safer traveling to school for children and make it easier and more comfortable, whether it is on foot or by bicycle.
Description of the guideline	Every year, about thirty children die on Czech roads and thousands of them are injured. Traffic accidents are the most frequent cause of death in children as a result of injury. In our country, traffic safety and above all the safety of its most vulnerable participants – the children – falls well behind in comparison to most other developed countries in Europe. Moreover, Prague belongs to the most populated cities in the Czech Republic (after Ostrava, Prague is the city second most affected by fine dust in the country and 2/3 of its population live in places with above-limit noise). A major factor to this unfortunate situation is the huge increase in private car traffic. Children are the most vulnerable to this dangerous situation and because of this we began the Safe Routes to School projects. In 2009, these projects became part of the program of Prague in cooperation with Pražské Matky and the association Oživení. Any school or educational institute in Prague can take part in these projects.
